

Endodontic Specialists, PC

The easiest root canal you'll ever have

We are delighted to feature the founder of Endodontic Specialists:

Dr. Bruce R. Terry

Dr. Terry is a fellow of both the International College of Dentists and American College of Dentists, he also teaches as a Clinical Associate Professor in the Department of Endodontics at Temple University School of Dentistry. Dr. Terry completed his residency at Temple University School of Dentistry. Dr. Terry earned his BS in Biology and Natural Science: Muhlenberg College, Allentown, PA.

“Throughout my career I’ve made it a priority to keep abreast of advances in technology. Any technique or equipment that can make endodontics more effective, longer-lasting or more comfortable allows me to offer patients a higher standard of care. After all, helping people is why I became an endodontist in the first place. In the end, my favorite thing is to hear my patients say, ‘Everything I’ve heard about root canals is a lie.’”

It’s fast. It’s easy. It’s comfortable...
It’s not your father’s root canal!

In addition to his various professional memberships, Dr. Terry is at the helm as Editor of the Journal of the Pennsylvania Dental Association.

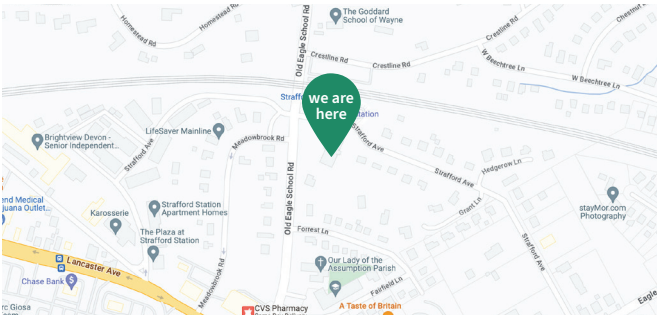

A husband and father, Dr. Terry enjoys hobbies like woodworking and home renovation, backpacking, horseback riding, and bicycling. Born and raised in Los Angeles, Dr. Terry loves the landscape surrounding his home in Wayne, Pennsylvania.
